Color of DWP Light Festival: Especially Green

■ Dept.'s annual Light Festival in Griffith Park, which opens Nov. 20, goes environmentally friendly with LED lights, and biking and walking opportunities.

DWP — It was always green (and red), but now the annual DWP Holiday Light Festival in Griffith Park is going really green — as in environmentally friendly.

The popular annual Light Festival begins with a preview bike event Nov. 19, and "walking only" test week through Nov. 25. The festival opens to vehicles Monday, Nov. 26.

"The DWP received a number of inquiries from neighborhood councils and community groups to see if the festival could become more environmentally friendly and walking only," according to DWP spokeswoman Kim Hughes. "The DWP worked with the councils and groups in exploring options, and we are very proud to have put together a great strategy."

The festival again will be run on site by Anita Wright, Club Member, the first woman in the department's history to manage the event on site.

See the story inside on page 38.

Power [TO THE] People

Alive! visits the DWP power plants and transfer stations and the men and women who staff them, following the electricity from generation into the grid. Here's where the power for your lights, computers and televisions starts. Included: an interview with DWP power chief Enrique Martinez on the department's green efforts, among other topics.

Club Insurance Check Refund Totals $700,000

■ Club to give back $700,000 total to holders of Club Life Insurance. Do you have Club Life Insurance?

CLUB HEADQUARTERS — The Club will be returning approximately $700,000 in refunds to more than 8,500 holders of the Club's Life Insurance product.

What will you be doing with your refund? You'll get one if you have Club Life Insurance.

Members pay premiums each month. At the end of the year, money that is not paid in the administration of the claims is returned. This year, that totals approximately $700,000.

"That's among the largest amounts we have returned in our 79-year history," said Brian Trent, the Club's Chief Financial Officer. "Club Life Insurance promises to be there for those in need; that's our highest priority. But, after that, we love giving back anything we don't need."

Read the story on page 7 for details on the check disbursement, and how you can be eligible for next year's Club Life Insurance refund.

CORRECTIONS

In last month's Alive!, we ran one caption with the wrong photo, and one photo with the wrong caption. Alive! regrets the errors.

Cooking With the Club

In Cooking With the Club, the first instructional photo was incorrect. Here's the correct photo, with the correct caption.

Step 1: Wash your hands, the shrimp (after they have defrosted in the fridge), your utensils, your cutting board, and anything else that comes in contact with your preparation area. Place your shrimp in a large bowl.

"This picture was taken from inside a small temple looking out onto the main temple, at the infamous Angkor Wat complex in Cambodia. I don't think that I could ever put into words exactly what it is that I felt at this precise moment. No words could ever serve justice to such a feeling."

— Neil Rivas, son of Robert Rivas, DWP.

John's comments: These types of pictures are not easy to take. They usually become radically overexposed because of the darkness where the camera is. Nice work, Neil. You have a good eye for that "classic" shot.

Picture Perfect

In Picture Perfect, one winning photo carried the wrong caption. Here is the winner, with the correct caption text:

* A Message From the CEO *

Here's Where the Power Comes From

by John Hawkins
President and CEO, The Club

You flick on a light. You switch on your laptop. You settle into your favorite sofa, ready to watch an interesting program on Tony Ighani's LA Cityview 35.

It all just happens, automatically. Flick ... and there it is.

Ever wonder where that power comes from? Wonder no more – we've devoted 18 pages of this month's Alive! to answer that question. We all might take our power for granted, but the good employees at the DWP take pride in thinking about that every day.

There is nothing simple about power generation and transmission. The truth is, it's a huge network of interconnecting cables, monstrous turbines and ridiculously tall transmission towers. It is really complex.

For this November issue, Alive! photographers roamed the Southwest to snap photos of most of the main facilities ... and some of the great people who work at them. They make the power and then bring it to you, and they take those jobs seriously.

DWP Power Chief Enrique Martinez talks about the power system with John Hawkins.

Special thanks go to Enrique Martinez, Chief of the Power Side; MaryAnne Pierson, who helped us produce this great feature; and all the folks we thank in the feature, which begins on page 10. We hope you enjoy it.

In other news ... a huge high-five goes to Rita Robinson, Club Board Member, who has been appointed the new General Manager at Transportation. She's the best, and well deserving.

And let's don't forget about the refund checks. The Club is proud to be able to bring you this benefit. Club Life Insurance is all about being there when you need it. Having said that, though, it's great when we can return money to our policyholders, too. How do you get this refund? Purchase a Club life insurance policy. Read the stories on pages 7 and 60.

November is when eyes and hearts turn to the holidays. It's one of my favorite times of the year, and I know it's special to our Club Members, too — you guys host really fun holiday parties every year. So many, in fact, that we simply can't get to all of them. Let us know when your party is, for sure, and we'll see if we can cover it. But don't be shy about sending us your photos. That way, we know it will get covered. See the instructions on page 35.

And now, one final word about Thanksgiving. Some people like roasting their turkey, some like deep-frying it, some like it sliced on sandwiches, etc. But you know what I've found that makes the turkey taste best? It's when you say thanks first, thanks for all your blessings. It makes the turkey taste so much better!

Okay, that's it from me for this month. See you in December!

JOHN

LETTER OF THE MONTH

'Alive Around World' Shows Club Members Leading Fun Lives

I am very impressed to see all the City employees taking Alive! with them on vacation. I'm going on vacation soon and would like to have my picture put in Alive!, too. What do I need to do? Thank you very much for your help.

— Sal Benrilquo

*Hi Sal: We are really proud of our "Alive Around the World" feature, which Club Members have really embraced. Have you checked out the locations where Club Members take Alive? India ... China ... Ireland ... Australia ... Iraq ... Mexico ... Egypt ... the Caribbean, and on and on! We're holding out for Antarctica, the North Pole, Easter Island, etc. When we started this feature, we thought we might get a few fun photos from California, but Club Members have done us proud. It really reflects how really, well, alive our members are. So keep 'em coming! Oh, right, you asked a question. Getting your vacation photo into "Alive Around the World" is easy: Take your latest copy of Alive! with you. And then, when you come upon a really interesting location – it can be famous, but doesn't have to be* stand in front of it (daylight usually is best), and have someone take your photo. Hold the paper pretty high on your chest, and stand closer to the camera than to the landmark. That way, we get to see your face, and that's important. Also, make sure your camera's setting is for high-resolution (big) pictures. Then email the digital photo to us, telling us your name and department, and writing a quick recap of what's in the picture. That's it! Email it to "talkback@cityemployeesclub.com" You can also mail a paper photo to the address on page two. — Ed.

Revised Page 2 Chart Shows How Smart Club Insurance Is

Holy Insurance Claims Paid, Batman! The Club seems to be helping its members when they need it most (just finished reading page two). It's good to know that employees like me can count on the Club in case I have to use my insurance, like my disability insurance. When the Club says it pays when you buy insurance through the Club, they're not kidding!

— Linda Gomez, Rec and Parks

Office Depot Benefit Shows Club Membership Pays Off

Okay, okay, okay. I went to Office Depot. I bought about $125.33 worth of stuff. I swiped my credit card at the cash register that I linked with the Club/Office Depot discount, and it was unbelievable. The cashier said, "Your new total is $80.26." Wow! Thanks Club! What a great benefit!

— Brian Christopher, DWP

International Friends Story Shows That City's a Good Place to Work

The story on the International Friends on page 26 [September Alive!] was refreshing. I love food and I wish I had known about it so I could have tried the food they had there. It sounded like it was all yummy! I noticed that everyone in the photos had big smiles and great plates of food, people like Claudia Rojo, Ripsime Ter-Galstyan and Paola Valencia. Life at the City is good, really good. I love it! I think every department should take the example of Contract Administration and have their own international food luncheons. Keep up the good work, Contract Ad!

— Henry Mora, Transportation

Where Is Hynda? This Club Member Missed Her Column

I missed Hynda Rudd's column in the last issue of Alive!

I'm a faithful fan of hers and look forward to it each month.

Thank you!

— Terry Aguilar, Club Member

Hi Terry: As you'll see when you read Hynda's column, History Comes Alive!, this month, she was a very busy person last month. We are all glad to have her back! — Ed.

Tips for Safe Holiday Fun

By Jimmy Hill; Fire Marshal, LAFD

The holidays are a great time ... but here are some safety tips to make sure they are exciting for all the right reasons!

When you change your clock, change your smoke alarm battery. On Nov. 4, we will once again move our clocks back an hour. Take the time to change your smoke alarm battery at the same time. It's a good habit.

Make sure everyone in your family knows what a smoke alarm sound like, regardless of their age. The best way is to get everyone together to test the alarm. If you have anyone in your house with a special need, make sure they can either get out or call for help on their own.

Holiday Cooking

Burning propane fuel plus hot oil is dangerous. Please be careful when deep frying turkeys. Many people have been burned because the fryer can tip over easily. The fryer sides, lid and pot handles can get dangerously hot. Turkey fryers usually are not UL-approved.

- Never walk away from your stove while cooking because a child could get hurt.
- Know how to call 9-1-1.
- If you have a grease fire on your stove, never use water.
- Use a fireplace screen whenever you are going to have a fire in the fireplace.
- Make sure you have an approved spark arrester on your chimney. Have your chimney checked and cleaned by a certified person.
- Make sure your rain gutter has been cleaned out. Make sure all leaves are disposed of correctly.
- Make sure all windows, screens, and any security device that is in place are working properly

Holiday Travel

If you are going to be traveling during the holiday season, remember to be prepared:

- Know all your escape routes and show them to your family.
- Decide where you and your family should meet outside if you have to evacuate or if you get separated.
- Make sure you only stay at hotels that have smoke alarms and a fire plan in place.
- Always have a flashlight, whistle and a good working (and charged) cell phone with you.
- Never take an elevator during a fire or earthquake. Always use the stairs.

In the fourth quarter of 2006 (the holiday season) in the City, we had 12 fires and 807 medical incidents every day. Let's start this holiday season the right way and the best way -- let's be fire safe.

Brian, your Club CFO says...

Life is good with another BIG Refund Check

Refund Checks On Their Way

■ The Club announces life insurance refunds of approximately $700,000. Are you eligible?

CLUB HEADQUARTERS — Here come the refund checks ... right on time for your holiday needs!

The Board of Directors has approved a Club Life Insurance refund of approximately $700,000 to be distributed back to the eligible Club members.

The Club continues its tradition of rewarding Club Life Insurance policyholders with a return of unused premiums (total premiums collected less paid claims and expenses). The 2007 refund will be the Club's 76th refund.

"This is another great example of how the Club works for its members," said Brian Trent, the Club's Chief Financial Officer. "Club Life Insurance is all about being there when our Members are in need. That's our first priority. And we are happy to return that portion of the premiums that are not needed."

Who is eligible? Anyone who had Life, Spouse Life, Dependent Life, Retiree Life or Retiree Spouse Life

Insurance in force for the month of July 2007 is eligible for a refund.

The actual amount Members receive will be determined as a percentage of the total premiums paid by an individual for the period of August 2006 through July 2007. However, those who dropped their insurance coverage prior to July 31, 2007, are not eligible for any refund.

Checks will be distributed at your worksite and mailed to active members in early December. Anyone who has recently changed departments should notify the Club so their check does not get lost in the distribution process.

Retiree member checks will be mailed in early December.

Are you not eligible for a refund check, but would like to be? It's so simple. Purchase any Life plan from the Club, and you're eligible. Insure your family's future and receive a little reward each year for living!

See pag 61 for an application. Talk to your Club Counselor, or call the Club at (800) 464-0452.

[THE]

Last February, Alive! focused on the water that supplies the City by following the DWP's Los Angeles Aqueduct from Lee Vining to Sylmar.

And now comes part two, as Alive! looks at the DWP's equally critical power side, visiting the department's staffed power generation and transfer stations from Boulder City to Long Beach.

Come along and meet some of the people along the City's electricity grid who generate and bring you the service that powers your life.

The Alive! Interview

Energy Now and in the Future

■ Alive! interviews Enrique Martinez, Chief Operating Officer, Power System, for the Department of Water and Power, about how the department generates the power you use, its emergency situations, and its green future.

DWP — On Sept. 7, Alive! CEO John Hawkins interviewed the head of the DWP Power System, Enrique Martinez, about the heat wave the City had just endured, the broad view of the power system, and department's efforts at green power generation.

Alive!: Thanks so much for meeting with Alive!

ENRIQUE MARTINEZ: Sure.

Alive!: One of the most important things is to give the reader a broad overview of the power system. I think a lot of people have misconceptions about where we get our power. Where does it come from?

ENRIQUE: Okay. Well, first of all, we measure the capacity of the system, the size of the system, by megawatts. A megawatt is a million watts of power. The Department of Water and Power has more than 7,000 megawatts of its full capacity, which means two things: one, we are one of the largest utility in the nation based on that indicator; and two, we are the largest municipality in the United States.

We also have 1.4 million meters on the power system, which represent the individual homes, residences and apartments that we serve at all times with that full capacity. That's about 10 percent of the full capacity of the State of California. Our transmission lines are throughout the West. They are not just in the City and the state. They are out of state, too.

Alive!: And you own those lines.

ENRIQUE: We own those lines.

Alive!: But maybe not the source.

ENRIQUE: In most cases we own the source, and also we own the transmission. And then, of course, we own the distribution within the City of Los Angeles. So we are considered a vertically integrated utility. That means we own generation. We own transmission. We own distribution, and we serve the customers directly. So that, in the big picture, is what the Department does and has at present.

Coal Power

Alive!: Please give us a broad overview of where all this energy and electricity comes from.

ENRIQUE: Sure. A good quantity of the power comes from out of state. We invested many, many millions of dollars, billions of dollars, with out-of-state facilities. One comes out of Utah, where we are part of the Intermountain Power Project. We also own Navajo, which is near Page, Ariz. It is a facility on the Navajo Reservation.

Alive!: Intermountain is a generating facility?

ENRIQUE: It is a generating facility. It has two large coal units up there. 47 percent of the energy that we provide for the City today comes from coal generation.

Alive!: Where does the coal come from?

ENRIQUE: Mines. In Utah, we buy from mines.

Alive!: And Navajo is coal.

ENRIQUE: Correct.

So we have those facilities. And we still own part of Mojave, in Laughlin, Nev. And that is a coal ownership. The plant is shut down since the end of 2005, and the owners are trying to figure out what to do. There are three other owners along with us.

Natural Gas Power

ENRIQUE: So then we go to natural gas. In the L.A. basin, we own four natural gas facilities. They are Haynes, near Seal Beach and Long Beach; the Harbor Generating Station, by the Port of Los Angeles; Scattergood, next to Hyperion Treatment Plant; and the Valley Generating Station, in Sun Valley. So those four provide our gas-fired generation.

Alive!: Where does the natural gas come from?

ENRIQUE: We buy natural gas on the spot market. Also, we have bought a position in reserves in Wyoming, where the Department has bought actual gas fields.

Alive!: Really.

ENRIQUE: And we are moving gas. It is being produced from Wyoming all the way down to Los Angeles using pipelines. It is withdrawn from the field in Wyoming, in Pinedale. It goes through a process to make it pipeline-quality before it is injected into what they call the Kern River Pipeline. Kern River Pipeline runs all the way from Wyoming to the California border. And then at the California border, it gets transported to the Southern California gas company system. And then from the gas system it comes to our plants.

Alive!: Wow.

ENRIQUE: So we bring gas as far as Wyoming. We can bring it from as far as Texas.

The pipes are mostly underground.

Also, we buy gas from the market. We have short contracts with producers. Then we manage it. Install it. And then use it for our system.

Power [to the] People

The Alive! Interview

Water Power

Alive!: So there is coal, natural gas and hydroelectric, too.

ENRIQUE: Right. Yes. In terms of hydroelectric, the biggest component is our allocation from Hoover Dam. Many years ago, the Department was one of the first investors to make building the dam possible.

Alive!: We invested in that?

ENRIQUE: Yes. We had a compound where employees lived in Boulder City during construction and up to 1983. We had Department personnel who lived in Boulder and worked at Hoover Dam, operating our units. Following 1983, the [Federal] Bureau of Reclamation took ownership back basically, because we had a 50-year-license when Hoover Dam was built. So they took the option to take it back, and now the dam is operated by the federal government. Most of the facilities were sold at that point. The homes and everything we had back there were also sold to the employees in most cases. Many of the employees stayed with the Bureau of Reclamation.

Alive!: So they switched jobs?

ENRIQUE: Basically, yes. But we retained the allocation of the power coming out of Hoover Dam. And it is about 380 megawatts coming out of there.

Alive!: And there are other hydroelectric plants, too, right?

ENRIQUE: Right. We also have hydroelectric along the LA Aqueduct, all the way from Owens Valley. There are power plants all the way down. Everything is driving flow. There are no pumping stations to get the water down from the Owens Valley. They built small power plants to provide power for [aqueduct] construction. After the construction, they stayed to provide power. So we have hydro facilities there, the Upper Gorge, the Middle Gorge and the Control Gorge. And we have power plants down farther, too. There is a large plant in the San Francisquito Canyon. That is at the confluence of a lot of water coming through the Aqueduct. There is a lot of water there, so they put a large power plant there.

Alive!: But Hoover Dam is the biggest?

ENRIQUE: That is the biggest.

Alive!: And the most recognizable?

ENRIQUE: Right.

Alive!: What about Castaic?

ENRIQUE: Castaic is the pump storage. It is hydro, but a little different type of hydro.

Alive!: Explain that...

ENRIQUE: Well, during the day, water is released from the Upper Reservoir, which is Pyramid Lake. It comes down to Castaic and generates power. In the evening, when the demand goes down in the City for power, we reverse the pumps. We pump the water back up and store it for the following day. It's kind of like a recycling process. We don't necessarily get more kilowatt-hours out of it. But you bring in the kilowatt-hours to [generate] more expensive power when you need it. And because you can put that energy into the system so quickly, it becomes a very good way to meet the peak demand. We use surplus power in the evening to pump the water back up, and then [generate] more expensive power during the day.

Alive!: And there is only one of those?

ENRIQUE: One in the Department, yes. It generates 1600 megawatts, which is a large facility. And it's used pretty much every day. We have to work with the Department of Water Resources. They schedule the water that has to be released into the L.A. area. They have to maintain the pumping at Evanston, coming over the Grapevine.

Alive!: Sounds complicated...

ENRIQUE: It is, yes. There is always concern in the scheduling process between the water system, the California Water Resources, and us, to make those schedules come about.

Nuclear Power

Alive!: How about nuclear power? Doesn't something like 11 percent of our power come from nuclear sources?

ENRIQUE: About 10 percent, yes.

Alive!: Does that come from San Onofre?

ENRIQUE: No, no. That comes out of Palo Verde, 50 miles west of Phoenix. We own 10 percent of capacity at Palo Verde, 10 percent of the nuclear plant.

Palo Verde has six owners: us, Southern California Edison, Salt River Project in Arizona, Arizona Public Service, El Paso Electric, and Tucson.

Alive!: Do we literally get electricity from that plant?

ENRIQUE: Yes. It comes from the switchyard for the power plant. We have a transmission line connected to its switchyard that brings the power all the way to Palm Springs. And then from there it goes to Victorville, and from Victorville it's distributed across the City.

Green Power

Alive!: And finally, renewable energy.

ENRIQUE: We have an internal goal, directed by the board and the mayor, to achieve 20 percent of our retail sales from eligible renewable energy by 2010. So we are aggressively pursuing large quantities of renewable energy. We are going to buy some; we are going to build some. And then we are going to have somebody else build them and we will buy it.

Alive!: What are you building?

ENRIQUE: We will be building a 120-megawatt wind farm. We have the turbines. We just completed a land negotiation for the leases of the land where it is going to go in.

Alive!: Where?

ENRIQUE: Tehachapi. Actually, it will be north of Mojave on 395, on the way to Bishop, about 14 miles north of the town of Mojave.

Alive!: And that is property we already own?

ENRIQUE: No, it's privately owned, but we negotiated long-term leases with the owners for the site and use the facility. We are also pursuing purchasing additional land around that area. The wind potential is pretty good in that area. We have transmission lines there, so we are trying to find a way to increase the capacity for that region there so we can bring more of that power to the City.

Alive!: So what would be, 10 years from now, the most popular form of renewable energy?

ENRIQUE: Well, I think it will be wind primarily. But we are also going to bring other technology into the picture. We are definitely pursuing geothermal. We are working with the Imperial Irrigation District in the Salton Sea area, for co-development of geothermal down there. The Department has purchased some land with geothermal potential in the Imperial Valley, which we plan to develop as well.

Alive!: Geothermal means heat in the earth.

ENRIQUE: In the earth. Correct.

Alive!: How do you create energy?

ENRIQUE: You drill wells into the earth, and you collect that heat, or what we call plasma. It depends on the type. But you bring heat from the earth and you process it through a heat exchanger, where you then make the exchange in the full system to make steam inside the turbine. Then you get this power.

Alive!: So it is hot enough to make steam?

ENRIQUE: Oh, yes. Yes.

Alive!: Like a nuclear reactor without the radiation.

ENRIQUE: Correct. The fields are somewhere in the neighborhood of 340 to 380 degrees. So it is not what we call superheated, but it is hot enough to generate and get enough energy out of that source so we can run turbines. What makes it clean is that there are no emissions. Once the steam has expanded, it is re-injected back into the earth so that the cycle continues to feed itself.

Alive!: What about photovoltaic?

ENRIQUE: The Department has a very aggressive plan for adding photovoltaic. It is a long process because every installation is so small.

The way that we are using to try to get people to invest money into photovoltaic is by providing rebates. But the rebates unfortunately are not large enough to offset the cost of the investment. And then, because our rates are so low and the payback period is so long, that it kind of works against itself. We just adjusted and submitted to the board for consideration a revision of the rate of the rebate structure, to make it more attractive.

Green Challenges

Alive!: What prevents us from doing building photovoltaic cells in the desert?

ENRIQUE: Cost. It is very expensive. The most efficient way to collect solar power is called a concentrated solar system. Concentrated solar means fields and fields of troughs of mirrors that are concave with a conductor, or some kind of a pipeline through the center of the conductor. The parabolic mirror tracks the sun from the morning to the evening, and then reflect it into one single point at the apex of the parabolic dish. That is where the heat is concentrated, and the heat transfer occurs at that point. The fluid runs through that pipe, all the way back to a heat exchanger. That is where the steam is created and then runs a turbine. We have been looking at that type of [system], but more cost effective, more controllable. You are limited to smaller quantities because it takes a lot of area to produce one kilowatt of energy.

Alive!: And it is DC to AC.

ENRIQUE: DC to AC. You have the conversion issue. You have other problems, so it is very inefficient.

Alive!: You have to convert it to AC to transmit it.

ENRIQUE: Yes. In that conversion, you lose energy. And so by the time you add all these things, possibly solar is much more effective and efficient than is photovoltaic.

Alive!: Does DWP own any [photovoltaic] projects?

ENRIQUE: No. About three projects have been proposed. We are evaluating those right now actively and probably we will see one, maybe two in the next 10 years.

Alive!: The people who work on this, are they DWP employees? Is there a renewable energy division?

ENRIQUE: We are starting that. Up to now, we do not own renewables. Our first major installation on renewables will be the wind farm. And we are looking right now at staffing and looking at the profile of the kind of work that they have to perform. We are finding that one of the physical requirements of these jobs is that employees will have to climb 300 feet up in the air and perform work at those elevations.

Alive!: Three hundred feet.

ENRIQUE: Three hundred feet in the air. That is where the turbines are.

Alive!: On the wind farm?

ENRIQUE: The wind farms, yes. The actual turbines will be sitting 300 feet up in the air. It is pretty mountainous where we are going to be installing our turbines. Palm Springs is fairly flat. We have identified that our people will have to climb up daily and then also be able to safely rappel over the side and come down in an emergency. They would be harnessed and all that, of course. It is one thing doing it on the ground level. It is another thing doing that at that level.

Alive!: Do you think we are at an advantage as opposed to other municipalities or power users in the United States in that we have wind, heat and many sunny days? Whereas, maybe back East or in the Midwest there might not be as much of that?

ENRIQUE: That is true. The resources here on the West Coast are more plentiful. They facilitate that type of technology. If you go to other places it is more difficult to develop them because it just impedes itself. They do not have the weather and terrain to be able to make that happen. So, yes, I think there is a lot of potential to tap.

I think our biggest challenge is that we are moving from what we did in the past, from very large, large projects, to a whole bunch of little ones. They have to be built. They have to be maintained. They are going to have to be commissioned and permitted. And then, of course, transmission lines have to be built. When you are working on a large project, there is a lot of focus and concentration, and a lot of resources pour in. But once it is done, it is done, and it is pretty predictable. When you start multiplying that in a number of different foreign projects, your risk level goes up.

Alive!: Right. Eighty turbines instead of one.

ENRIQUE: Yes. Or one large boiler. So, yes, it becomes a little more challenging and more labor-intensive to maintain a new system. But the trade-off, of course, is that they are cleaner. They are very clean. It does help the atmospheric conditions. It addresses the global warming problem. It addresses a number of other issues of technology development. And, ultimately, over time, these may be the beginning of a nexus of new technology that will be evolving, because the issue of combustion in general, whether it be automobiles or diesel engines or power plants or cement plants ... it is becoming more and more of a challenge to keep combustion as the mainstream way we produce any kind of energy for anybody in this country. There has to be some departure, some way to find alternatives. And it is not going to be cheap. This is one of the issues. It is not going to be a cheap way to go, but ultimately for the long-term issues of the economy and of the citizens and humans, something has to change.

And I am really concerned. This last two years we have had some unusual weather. We have been talking in the Department about how we used to predict pretty much where [energy demand was] going to be, and how the weather was going to behave, and make our plans somewhat systematically. We have so much history as to how patterns develop. And right now we are in a really strange pattern that we cannot predict one way or the other which way it is going to go.

Alive!: But it's gone out the window?

ENRIQUE: That has kind of gone out the window, yes. Last year, there was so much demand driven by a long duration of [high] temperature that tasks our system. The demand was driven to levels we did not anticipate until 2011 or 2012. We are going back to the drawing board right now and try to figure out, okay, what have we got to do? We cannot be in a position where the City is jeopardized and they cannot have reliable power. Having customers [lose power] or days upon days without energy and hot days, is just not sustainable and it is not something that the City wants to have. The Department, frankly, doesn't want to explain why customers are without service for long durations.

Selling Power

Alive!: Does anyone buy power from us?

ENRIQUE: Yes. We sell surplus power to the market when it is not needed by us. We will make it available when it is surplus, but if we need it we always call it back because we make sure that the City is served first.

Alive!: Can buyers be a municipality? Can it be another corporation?

ENRIQUE: Yes. It could be a utility. It could be an out-of-state utility. It could be a marketer. Our issue is not necessarily who we sell it to. Our issue is to make sure that the financing is viable, that they can pay us when we sell that power because we do not want to extend credit to companies that do not have a lot of credit.

So, yes, we do sell surplus energy. It is not a big component of our business, but it is one. We also buy from the system. Sometimes the market is such that there is a lot of excess power. Maybe it was anticipated to be real hot, but it never got real hot. And all of a sudden you are flooded with a lot of energy out there. When that happens, we can go into the market and say, well, we will buy that excess energy. And then we will use it at Castaic for pumping, or we will shut down one of our fossil units to displace that energy.

Alive!: Fossil meaning?

ENRIQUE: Gas or coal.

Alive!: Fossil fuels.

ENRIQUE: Yes. We manage that. There is an active management system of all the infrastructure, all the options, both internal and external. And then also we look at the best way to shape the portfolio going forward to bring us the most reliability and the lowest cost to the consumer.

Coming Back to California

Alive!: You worked for Southern California Edison for how many years?

ENRIQUE: Sixteen.

Alive!: Sixteen years. And then -- I am not expert in your field, but it would seem to me you went to the best, which is then the Tennessee Valley Authority.

ENRIQUE: Right. Six years there.

Alive!: To me that would be the crowning achievement. So how do you go from the Tennessee Valley Authority -- the best, and maybe the top -- back to LA?

ENRIQUE: When I came back to California, it was right at deregulation. There were new models being implemented in California that were really kind of out of the box. Nobody had done it. Everyone was trying to figure out how this whole new system was going to work and it was a great period of experimentation in the power industry. I was intrigued by how these things are going to work in California. Back in Tennessee, we had a model that was very robust. It had been proven. It had been shot at many, many times, and the model -- public and private partnership -- worked well. I would not say it was on automatic mode, but in essence there were not a lot of variances you could actually go into and perform.

Well, here in California, it was just the opposite. So when the opportunity came about to come out here and come back to L.A. and be in the middle of this great experiment that was going on, I took it. I grew quickly in three years, just being in on the ground floor of this great experiment in California. I never would have been exposed to that or would have been really had an opportunity to learn. I started not only to understand but manage a system in this very turbulent world. Still today I am still learning more, and it gave me a good foundation to deal with how to protect the Department going forward and stay out of these morasses that happened in earlier times, to not repeat it. That's our challenge right now with term limits. Legislators now are novice in what they come into. They are trying to make decisions or pass laws on issues that they have no history and no background, and that becomes a challenging element. We have to become more of an instructor teaching and explaining why certain things will not work.

Big Responsibilities

Alive!: Do you ever think about the responsibility that you have? Is it a duty? Is it an honor, a responsibility? The happiness and the lives of so many people are based upon what you do. Do you ever think about that awesome responsibility you have?

ENRIQUE: Well, yes, at times. Sometimes the reality hits you, like it did this last weekend when we had extreme weather. And you get reports of the number of outages and the people who are affected. You roll the crews out. You call people out. Trying to manage my staff and all of the ins and outs of what needs to happen physically to restart power and get people served. To me, that is when it really hits me -- the size and the magnitude of the system that I am responsible for. But also how good the staff is in responding. I was really proud of the guys through this last outage. The hot weather came faster than we thought. The crews started getting ready for it. And as things continued to change throughout the day, they kept adjusting systems, whether it be at the distribution level or generation or transmission, or going to the market, to make sure everything came together without a step missing in the process. We did not stumble. We did not fall.

Things kept running, and then the third day hit, and obviously the pressure got worse. And we had to make some calls -- what do we have to do to get the power systems back up again to the customers? We had a long weekend [Labor Day], so that made it more difficult.

All in all, to me, it is a challenge. I do not think about it too much until these events happen. And that is when the tire meets the road.

Alive!: It becomes personal to you.

ENRIQUE: Yes. It's a reflection of the customers' confidence in the Department. And that reflects all the way from the General Manager to every employee in the Department. I was reading in the paper where customers were glad to see the crews. It was almost like a cowboy was riding out to the rescue, and the guys feel proud about that. They really do. There is a lot of pride. That is when they shine the best, when things are going bad.

It becomes very personal to all of us. As professionals and individuals, we pride ourselves in managing the system and doing it well.

Alive!: What makes you happy about the job?

ENRIQUE: The challenge. It is so diverse. The system is large enough, and so diverse, that we find different type of challenges every day, whether it be administrative, legislative, strategic or operational. For me personally, the diversity of issues that come up and the opportunities that I have to participate in day to day, keeps the job very exciting. That's number one.

And number two, it is never boring. There is always something to deal with. And my job is broad enough that I can talk about technical items down to the detail on relay systems and small transformers. And then deal with policy issues. And with global warming and strategies on how to invest additional funds or monies in projects that will change the whole nature of the Department. The broad range of issues and opportunities that I have is what keeps this job pretty exciting for me.

Alive!: Thank you for your time today.

ENRIQUE: You're welcome. ■

RLACEI:

Is Combining Two Funds a Good Thing?

By Phil Skarin,
RLACEI Publicity Chair

President Ed Harding reports:

Ed Harding

RLACEI President Ed Harding reports: "I wish to thank all those who voted to retain our incumbent directors for another two-year term on the Executive Board.

They have all done a great job in the past, and I am looking forward to working with them in the future.

"The Mayor and Controller met Oct. 1 with representatives of LACERS and Fire & Police Pensions to discuss the pros and cons of combining the investment activities of both pension systems.

See Ken Spiker's report to the right for more details.

Keith Richman is again sponsoring a bill to eliminate pension systems as we have today. He is circulating petitions to have employees contribute to 401k or other similar programs and stop pension systems like ours. Do not sign these petitions.

See you at our Christmas Party Dec. 6. Americo Garza has again hired Chris & Pitts to feed us, and hired some great entertainment. We will be raffling off about 40 door prizes. Be sure to call to reserve your lunch.

Legislative Update:

Ken Spiker

Ken Spiker, our elected Commissioner to the LACERS Board of Directors, reports that the Mayor and City Controller's offices are currently studying an independent fiduciary audit recommending combining the investment functions of the Los Angeles Fire and Police Pensions System (LAFPP) and the Los Angeles City Employees Retirement System (LACERS), creating a new Department of Pension Investments (not to include the DWP).

A new Board would consist of nine members, five appointed by the Mayor and two representatives from each of the existing systems. (There is no mention of a retired representative). There would be no change to the benefit structure for the members.

There would be no change to the benefit structure for the members.

Here's a quick analysis of the proposed merger:

Upside:

- Provides reduced investment and operational expenses.
- Increases efficiencies by avoiding current duplication of the following areas:
 - Custodian bank
 - Consultants
 - Investment managers
 - Legal counsel
 - Technology
 - Office space
 - Asset allocation studies.
- Benefits members, City employees and taxpayers.
- Widens the base of membership and more balanced investment portfolio without changing the benefits members enjoy.

Starting at Hoover, Ending With LOVE

■ Hal and his family visit Hoover Dam and Las Vegas.

The last part of my summer trip with my grandkids (Maddie, Isabelle and Coco) was stopping at our home in Las Vegas for a few days.

We left Williams, Ariz., on a Wednesday morning for the 240-mile drive to Las Vegas along Interstate 40 until we reached Kingman, Ariz., where we changed to US93. The highway crosses over Hoover Dam, and I wanted to stop and take the kids on a tour.

Since 9/11, the security on the dam has been greatly increased, and prior to reaching the dam you must stop at a security checkpoint. We must have looked okay because they waved us on through.

Hoover Dam was completed in 1935 and at 726 feet high is one of the highest concrete dams ever constructed. The dam's completion created Lake Mead, the largest man-made lake in the United States. A few years ago they built a new visitors center and parking structure on the Nevada side, but I decided to park ($7) on the Arizona side, which let the kids walk across the dam from Arizona to Nevada. This was the week before Labor Day, but there was no line. After we paid our tour entrance fee ($11 for adults, $9 for seniors and $6 for kids 7 to 16), we took the 45-minute tour. After we watched a movie on the dam's construction, we took an evaluator down 500 feet to view the generators that provide power for much of Los Angeles and the rest of the southwest. After the tour, I walked back to the car and picked up everyone on the Nevada side.

We stopped in Boulder City to have lunch at the Coffee Cup Café (512 Nevada Highway). A few months ago I saw a program on the Food Channel about the best breakfast places, and this was one of them. My wife, Evelyn, and I drove out on our last trip to Las Vegas and enjoyed the breakfast.

Coco, Isabelle and Maddie enjoy their trip to Arizona and Nevada.

The lunch with the kids was also very good.

On the way into town, we dropped my son-in-law, J.P., off at McCarran Airport in Las Vegas to catch his flight home. My daughter, Michelle, and the girls would fly home Friday, and then Evelyn was flying in Friday to spend the rest of the Labor Day weekend in Vegas with me.

We spent the rest of the afternoon in the pool and took in a movie that evening.

The next day we took the kids to the Las Vegas Mini Prix (1401 N. Rainbow Blvd.), which has lots of rides and arcade games. The kids love the go-kart road course, which Maddie was able to enjoy by herself, and Michelle and I each took one of the other girls with us. Isabelle and Coco showed their driving skills on the "kiddie karts." After they ran out of ride tickets, we spent the rest of the time playing video games.

On Friday morning, we visited the Spring Preserve (www.springspreserve.org), once home to ancient Indian tribes and the resting place for Spanish explorers. It now tells the history of the Las Vegas Valley and showcases methods to maintain the lifestyle in the desert. The preserve is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday and until 10 p.m., Friday through Sunday. Admission is $18.75 for adults, $10.75 for those 5 to 17 years old, and $17.05 for seniors. The girls found the Ori*Gen experience interesting. There were a large number of interactive galleries that told the stories about the development of the Las Vegas area. If you want to learn about the how and why Las Vegas became Las Vegas, it is well worth the visit.

In the late afternoon, I put the girls and Michelle on a plane for Los Angeles and picked up Evelyn at the airport.

We get to our house in Las Vegas a number of times each year. The following are recommendations for a couple of restaurants we have been to and the one show we saw recently on the Las Vegas Strip.

On this trip, Evelyn wanted to eat at Bouchon [(702) 414-6200] in the Venetian. The restaurant is owned by Thomas Keller, who owns the French Laundry Restaurant in Napa, Calif. We have been trying to eat at the French Laundry for years and have never been able get Isabelle at the Spring Preserves.

Coco drives her "kid-die kart."

Maddie drives her go-kart.

a reservation. When I made the reservation for Bouchon (using Opentable.com), I told them it was Evelyn's birthday. When we got to the restaurant, we were seated on time and the waiter congratulated Evelyn on her birthday. We had dinner, and I must say that the food was great. After we finished dinner, I waited for them to bring the normal cake with a candle for Evelyn's birthday. We were surprised when they brought four different desserts to the table and then they brought four more desserts. In all, they gave us every dessert on the menu. Then the pastry chef came to our table to see if we liked them. It was a great experience, and even without the desserts I would go to the restaurant again.

The next night we had dinner at Nora's Wine Bar (1031 S. Rampart, [702] 367-4636). The food was great and served family style. As the name implies, the restaurant has a lot of wine, with more than 60 different varieties that you can order by the glass. It was another great experience, and I would eat there again.

For the past couple of years I have been looking for a good barbecue restaurant in Las Vegas, and I finally found one: T.C.'s Rib Crib (8470 W. Desert Inn Rd., [702] 451-7427) is great. It is well worth the drive from the strip.

We don't normally go to the Strip to see a show, but we had heard good reviews about LOVE, the Cirque du Soleil production (at the Mirage) that celebrates the music of the Beatles, so we decided to brave the Strip. LOVE is one of the best shows we've seen on the Strip. If you can only see one show while in Vegas, this is the one to see.

Vegas still is a great place to visit, and if you stay away from the gambling tables, it can be easy on your wallet.

LACERS Employee of the Quarter

■ Debra Fleming named Employee of the Quarter for Spring 2007.

LACERS — The Los Angeles City Employees' Retirement System (LACERS) has named Debra Fleming as its Employee of the Quarter for Spring 2007.

Fleming, a Management Assistant, worked for LACERS for two years in the Member Communications Unit. Recognized as a team player, Fleming was recognized for her hard work and dedication. Her duties include developing, organizing and presenting retirement seminars; serving as editor for the LACERS newsletters; and assisting with other publications produced by the organization.

Employees nominate their co-workers for Employee of the Quarter based on their notable contributions over and above the scope of normal duties. Senior staff members vote on the nominees and the winning Employee of the Quarter is announced and recognized at a staff luncheon. LACERS General Manager, Robert Aguillo Jr., presented Debra Fleming with a commemorative desk plaque and a $200 savings bond.

Debra Fleming.

Congratulations, Debra!

LACERS Welcomes the World

■ Retirement System welcomes delegations from Japan and Russia.

LACERS — The Los Angeles City Employees' Retirement System (LACERS) hosted two international delegations of pension officials in early September at LACERS headquarters building in downtown Los Angeles. The first seven-member delegation from Japan was welcomed Sept. 10, followed by the five-member Russian delegation Sept. 14.

As a premier pension plan, LACERS is frequently sought out by international officials as an example of a successful defined benefit plan.

Tom Moutes, LACERS Assistant General Manager, and Li Hsi, Administrative Services Division Manager, welcomed both delegations and presented a comprehensive look at how LACERS administers its retirement plan.

Moutes and Hsi responded to questions from the participants relating to investments, risk aversion, and union negotiations. Of particular interest to the visitors was the relationship between government plan sponsors and private pension funds as well as how the City Charter and State Constitution protect the funding of pension benefits.

LACERS is responsible for the administration of the City's pension plan to more than 29,000 active employees and 15,000 retirees and beneficiaries. LACERS has $11.1 billion in assets.

LACERS recently welcomed a best-practices delegation from Japan.

Delegates from Russia present a souvenir of their visit to Tom Moutes, LACERS Assistant General Manager.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY:

A Sense of Peace

*Someone did something to you that caused hurt and anger.
You couldn't be forgiving at the time,
so you allowed resentment to fester.
This can damage your quality of life.*

*Forgiveness can reduce stress and anger,
and allow you to move forward and be more creative.*

*It's about coming to peace internally.
Forgiveness is not giving up or giving in.
Forgiveness leads to strength and empowerment and will give you a sense of peace.*

— Phil Skarin

Legislative Update

- Boards will be more focused on their respective missions.
- Current interested parties will keep their stake in the management of the investments by having representatives on the new Board.
- New fund (more than $25 billion) will improve the rank to approximately number 50 of all U.S. plans, which may improve our ability to negotiate better terms and/or improve access to investment opportunities.
- Creates possibility for greater diversity with investments.
- May make it difficult to attract Board members to participate on the current Board and maintain quorums due to the greater emphasis on disability cases.
- Could create disenfranchisement of elected pension representatives on investment matters. Also, a Board that considers both investments and benefits has trustees and staff who can see the impact of decisions on the members they serve.
- The two systems have different funded ratios that should be considered when developing investment strategies, including asset allocation.

Downside:

- If it's not broken, don't fix it.
- Adds another layer of administration as the new "department" would still need administrative support in the areas of:
 - Accounting
 - Personnel administration
 - Board support (travel, agendas, etc.)
 - Information technology support
 - These may reduce or eliminate proposed savings.
- Both Departments also function similarly with regard to benefits administration and support functions. If there are efficiencies in merging investments, wouldn't there be greater efficiencies in merging the two departments entirely? Also, if this is such a great idea, why isn't DWP's retirement plan included?
- Could produce negative reaction from employee groups, fearing that the City is going after their pension funds to make political investments; could pit elected officials against unions in a Citywide election.
- Could weaken Fire and Police position in the Defined Benefit vs. Defined Contribution debate.

As of this writing, the LACERS fund is at a healthy $11.8 billion. Why can't the mayor and City Council give the survivors of the City's 15,000 retirees an increase in our burial expense, from $2,500 to $5,000?

It will cost the fund only $1 million a year. Cast overnight investments make that much in one day. Most other government retirees already have this benefit or more.

Payments to LACERS Fund:

In accordance with the City contribution rate adopted by the Board for Fiscal Year 2007-08, LACERS received the following amounts from City sources:

- Harbor: $11,586,593, received July 3
- Airports: $46,954,914, received July 9
- Controller's Office: $338,914,033, received July 18

The City received a $15,328,277 discount by paying LACERS early in the fiscal year. LACERS, therefore, has investment opportunities of the total $397,455,540 rather than waiting for partial payments throughout the year.

Holidays at Banning

■ Banning Residence Museum offers games, candlelight this Christmas.

REC AND PARKS — Banning Resident Museum, a Rec and Parks facility operated in cooperation with Friends of Banning Museum, is offering special events and holiday-themed opportunities this Christmas season.

The Banning Residence Museum is at 401 East M. St. in Wilmington.

Exhibition

"Educational Amusements: American Games of the Victorian and Edwardian Era"

Banning Residence Museum Exhibition Gallery, now through Jan. 6

For thousands of years the world's cultures have used games as a way to entertain and educate. Serving as mirrors of daily life and culture, games instructed players about important social values and rules. Games were often recycled over the centuries with different societies modifying them to fit their needs. The Victorian Era saw an explosion of board games due to increased leisure time and advances in manufacturing. Victorian board games are beautifully-crafted, colorful artifacts indicative of a complex age that promoted values of industry, honesty, responsibility, and perseverance.

This exhibition will include games from the late 19th and early 20th century including board games, card games and word games. The oldest game on display dates from 1843 and is believed to be one of the first board games made in America, Mansion of Happiness, manufactured by W. & S.B. Ives.

The Banning Residence Museum is proud to host this beautiful collection of antique games on loan from Geraldine Knatz, who has served the community as a long time volunteer for the Friends of Banning Museum and through her current activities as Director of the Port of Los Angeles.

It's Party Pix Time

Hey Club Members:

Alive! wants to print pictures of your holiday office party!

1. Take the photos yourself, and send them in as soon as you can.

Digital photos are always best. And make sure you give us a description of the party: when it was, where it was, and if something significant happened, let us know that, too.

If there are just a few photos, then send them to talkback@cityemployeesclub.com. But if there are a lot, then it's best to burn them onto a CD and deliver (or mail) the CD to the Club. The address is on the inside front cover. Make sure the photos are as high resolution as you can make them.

2. Let us know when your holiday party is, and we'll try to send a photographer.

Please note:

There are more City holiday parties than we can cover, but we will try. That's why it's best to send in your own photos. If you want us to cover your party, talk to your Counselor (Liz Montes or Arlene Herrero) or write to Robert Larios, Club Director of Marketing and Communications, at rlarios@cityemployeesclub.com. We'll do our best to get to as many as we can, but we can't guarantee it. But let us know.

See you at the party!

RREC AND PARKS — 'Tis the season for a yuletide glide as the Southland's largest holiday outdoor ice skating rink, L.A. Kings Downtown on Ice, celebrates its tenth season at Pershing Square, (532 S. Olive St.). Downtown on Ice is scheduled to be open every day from Nov. 15 through Jan. 21, a week longer than last year.

Admission is only $6 per skating session with $2 skate rental, thanks to sponsorship from Rec and Parks, the Los Angeles Kings, and Councilmember Jan Perry (Ninth District).

Traditionally, thousands of people have enjoyed skating under the sun and stars in the heart of Los Angeles at what has been hailed as the Rockefeller Center of the West. Bedecked in full holiday splendor, the vast outdoor oasis is framed by towering skyscrapers and stunning historical landmarks. Adding to the holiday spirit, ongoing festivities include a free concert series, free youth hockey clinics, a free Winter Festival (Dec. 7 - 9), a weekend Kids Zone interactive entertainment, and more.

Centrally located, the facility is easily accessible by car, bus or rail. A partnership with Metro and Metrolink allows riders to receive a $1 skating session discount by showing a coupon available on all mass transit lines. The convenient stop at Pershing Square Station makes getting there easy. Underground discount parking is available with validation.

DWP Holiday Light Festival Goes Green

■ The popular annual festival of lights in Griffith Park made a number of changes to be environmentally friendly, including adding LED lights, and biking and walking opportunities.

DWP — The twinkle in Griffith Park that signals the start of the Christmas season in the City, is now more earth-friendly.

The DWP has made a number of changes to make its popular Holiday Light Festival better for the environment. The changes include:

- using energy-saving LED lights instead of the previous incandescent bulbs;
- making the first week of the festival exclusive to bikers and walkers — energy-conservation tips throughout the event.

“The DWP received a number of inquiries from neighborhood councils and community groups to see if the festival could become more environmentally friendly and walking only,” according to DWP spokeswoman Kim Hughes. “The DWP worked with the councils and groups in exploring options, and we are very proud to have put together a great strategy.”

The festival begins with a “Bike Night” preview Nov. 19, and a traditional opening event in conjunction with L.A.’s BEST Nov. 20.

“We have greatly appreciated all of the input and suggestions the community has shared with us regarding the festival,” Kim Hughes said. “We will evaluate our test pilot in the hope that it will be expanded. We will continue to seek ways to demonstrate our commitment to a green future.”

DWP 2007 Holiday Light Festival: “Going Green”

“Walking Only” Test Pilot Program: Nov. 21-25

The DWP has designated the first five public days of the festival for walking only. From Nov. 21 to 25 from 5 to 10 p.m., the festival will be “walking only.” Guests will be asked to park in parking lots at the L.A. Zoo and near the Griffith Park Merry-Go-Round. The DWP also will be using the parking lot near the train ride and pony rides, as well as the associated overflow lot.

over standard conventional light bulbs. Once installed, the department will measure the energy reduction and advise the public on the specific energy savings.

Tips and Energy Conservation Message

Energy conservation messaging, including energy and water-saving tips, will be included in the 2007 Holiday Light Festival Program. The customized program is distributed to all light festival attendees. In addition, it is available at City libraries, Rec and Parks facilities and other locations throughout the City.

Environmental Stewardship

In addition to making the change and initiating the walking plan, the DWP is taking a number of additional steps to make the festival more environmentally conscious. Some of those efforts include:

LED Light Bulbs

The DWP is supporting environmental responsibility by converting all of the light bulbs in the one-mile Holiday Light Festival to LED technology. This will save two-thirds the amount of energy needed

Bike Night:

Mon., Nov. 19 (bicycles and pedestrians)
As another way to demonstrate a commitment to a green L.A., the DWP will again host a “bicycle only” night as part of the 2007 Holiday Light Festival Mon., Nov. 19. This will be a preview night. The street will be completely closed off from 6 to 8 p.m.

John's Picture Perfect Contest

NEXT DEADLINE: November 15
Happy Snapping!

WIN FOUR PRIZES
$25 WalMart Card

Winner for November

"This was taken in Vernazza, Italy. It was taken through the opening in the thick walls of the old lookout tower. I liked how the rugged bricks created their own border of the spectacular view outside."

-- Patrick Tomcheck, Airports

John's comments: These are always such difficult shots to capture, Patrick; you did good! By the way, for those of you that don't know, Vernazza has no car traffic (a road leads into a parking lot on the edge of the town) and remains one of the truest fishing villages on the Italian Riviera.

Winner for November

"This 'Gates of the Valley' shot is popular with tourists visiting Yosemite. You can see El Capitan, Sentinel Dome, Cathedral and Half Dome in the distance."

-- Carlos and Leticia Aranda, DWP

John's comments: Well, I haven't been to Yosemite in quite some time, but I hope it still looks as beautiful as this photo does. From the sky, to El Capitan, to the trees to the grass to the water, you've captured it all. Great shot, Carlos and Leticia!

For November, we have four winners!

Start snapping today, and send us your best results!
Four winners will receive a $25 Target Card.

Winner for November

"This is Pee Wee, and he's looking very dapper in his glasses and bandana. We were camping and he just loves it!"

-- John R. Sanchez

John's comments: Dapper, indeed! He almost looks a little like a miniature "Dog the Bounty Hunter." Thanks, John, for sharing this with us!

Winner for November

"Cooning the bells -- This tower is 135 feet tall. Cooning the bells means climbing down the insulators to the wire, then you put a spacing cart on. The spans are a quarter-mile long."

-- Ron Angst, DWP

John's comments: A perfect entry for this issue, Ron! It's truly amazing to see what it takes to get power to Los Angeles. These are true City Heroes!

Donate Your Toys

■ As part of this Club holiday tradition, you can donate toys to the less fortunate.

THE CLUB — As part of the Club Angels program, the annual Club Toy Drive, in conjunction with the Central City Police Boosters toy drive, is ready to reflect your generosity and give to those in need.

Collections run through Dec. 7 at Club Headquarters or through your Club Counselor. Club Members are asked to contribute an unwrapped toy to the cause.

The drive benefits the LAPD Central City Police Boosters. In the past, some of the toys were distributed to City Employees in hardship, too.

This is the fifth year that the Club has participated in the Central City Police Boosters holiday toy drive, and each year the drive collects more toys. More than 95 toys were collected last year. With your help, the Club hopes to collect even more.

The Club thanks you in advance for your generosity.

Last year's toy drive distributed more than 95 toys to families in need.

Channel 35 Programs: Who Decides What's Made?

Every month, new programs are premiered on Channel 35 that include gavel-to-gavel coverage of City Council meetings and other critical public meetings and an array of original content produced for City departments and elected officials.

Have you ever wondered how original programs get produced by Channel 35? It starts with the Municipal Access Policy Board, or MAPB for short. This volunteer three-member board is the body responsible for making programming decisions every quarter when they convene and review various project requests, submitted to Channel 35 from City departments and elected officials. The MAPB also is authorized to initiate programming through ITA, which manages LA Cityview 35.

The MAPB strives to create programming that represents all City entities and helps increase the diversity of all voices. The MAPB also is responsible to advise the Council on policy issues affecting Channel 35. The MAPB is chaired by long-time member Tracy Westen, and co-chaired by John Lippman and member Andrew Glazier.

We congratulate the MAPB for its guidance, leadership and more than a decade of award-winning programming they helped to produce.

Programming Highlights in November:

Aging in LA

New episodes of "Aging in LA" make their LA Cityview 35 debut this month:

Seniors of all walks of life, all ages, all ethnicities and genders need access to services. In Aging Gay, we will look at the challenges facing gay and lesbian seniors in accessing services and breaking down barriers to fulfilling their needs for social services and support. We will also discuss AB 2920, new legislation aimed directly at assisting GLBT communities.

Some have alleged that state conservatorships in California have not satisfied the true reasons for which they were created. Instead, it is said, they have facilitated financial deceit and abuse of the elderly without consent or care. In State Conservatorships: Helpful of Harmful?, we'll take a look at the history of conservatorships and the new legislation.

Experts at the Keck School of Medicine at USC investigate the scientific aspects of diabetes and take their information to communities and families. In Diabetes, we will discuss insulin functions in humans, the causes of diabetes and what predisposes certain children to obesity and diabetes.

White House Conference on Aging Resolution Update will discuss the resolutions from the 2006 Conference and where we are in completing them. Guests: Marvin Schachter and Doreen Moore.

Disability Forum

On the next series of Disability Forum programs, host Mitch Pomerantz will cover a wide range of timely and useful topics.

The first show will explore the California Telephone Access Program, which provides accessible telecommunications equipment to individuals with disabilities. The second program will address the role played by the State Department of Rehabilitation in the employment of people with disabilities. With an unemployment rate exceeding 70 percent, the disability community has, by far, the highest rate of unemployment of any minority group. The third program will focus on the City's ongoing war against HIV/AIDS and the long-term testing initiative under way throughout the City. The final program will take a look at the Los Angeles County Commission on Disabilities, an entity that works to improve the lives of individuals with disabilities throughout the County.

The Great Eighth

Join Councilmember Bernard C. Parks and Gail Choice for new editions of The Great Eighth, a comprehensive look at one of the City's most colorful and diverse districts.

The Eighth District is experiencing tremendous commercial and community growth. Once primarily considered a predominately African-American community, the Eighth District is developing into a more diverse area. This reflects a national trend, which identifies urban areas as the new "hotspot" to buy homes due to the rising cost of real estate.

Leimert Park Village remains the cradle of African-American expression. We'll visit with Eso Won Books to learn about their move to the area, the challenges they face and what they will be bringing to the area.

Beautification and identification efforts are continually under way, spearheaded by community members interested in a safe and well-developed community.

Finally we'll get personal with Councilmember Bernard Parks and present a special look at his life and the woman at his side. Bobbie Parks joins the show to discuss her philanthropic organization and her life with our Eighth District Councilman.

The mural, which represents the culmination of work by almost 500 people, received a Community Beautification Grant in 2004 and 2005.

CITY BEAUTIFICATION

More than 350 people took part in the workshops to receive information on preparing beautification project proposals overall. On Sept. 24, the City Board of Public Works Office of Community Beautification conducted the last of 15 Citywide workshops in the Echo Park area of Los Angeles to show the public how to receive a matching grant of up to $10,000, available through the City's competitive Community Beautification Grant program.

With a 41 percent increase in workshop attendees from last year and a record 64 attendees at the Van Nuys workshop, Grant Manager Michael Espinosa, Rosa Benavides, Virginia Valencia, and Robin Woo were extremely pleased at the great interest and turnout from the public. The workshops were conducted in Palms/Rancho Park, Highland Park, North Hollywood, Tarzana, Los Feliz, Van Nuys, Pacoima, Manchester Square, Southeast Los Angeles, South Los Angeles, Venice, North Hills, El Sereno, Harbor City, and Echo Park. This year the grant expects to receive more than 200 applications and fund 90 projects.

Since 1998, more than 780 community beautification projects have been completed throughout the City. The scope and extent of the projects have ranged from mosaic and murals, public works of art, learning gardens on school campuses, tree plantings along highway medians, hiking trail restorations, new playground equipment, park benches and flower plantings along walkways.

History Comes Alive!

by Hynda Rudd,
City Archivist (Retired),
and Club Member

Tales From the City Archives

Councilman and Club Member Tom LaBonge (right), announces and delivers the book project to the City Council Sept. 26, and presented a Council proclamation to city historian Dr. Doyce B. Nunis Jr. (left) and Alive! columnist and Retired City Archivist Hynda Rudd (center).

Dedicated to L.A. Government

■ Two-volume book, produced by Hynda Rudd, is a landmark for City history.

On Sept. 26, the Los Angeles City Historical Society presented the City Council its very own history, in book form, from 1850-2000. This presentation was ably and adroitly accomplished by the Honorable Tom LaBonge, the Councilmember of the 4th District. This great nine-year endeavor ended up in the form of a two-volume, 1,000 page history, The Development of Los Angeles City Government: An Institutional Memory, 1850-2000.

The presentation of a two-volume set was made by Tom LaBonge, Fourth District Councilman and Club Member.

One thousand sets of the book were printed, and 400 of them have either been sold already or given to institutions of higher learning as part of the funding from the John Randolph Haynes and Dora Haynes Foundation. The remainder of the books is being sold through Loyola Marymount University. Please see the contact information at the end of the article.

The interest in this two-volume City history, a one-of-a-kind in this country, has even drawn inquiries from Europe.

This book is an anthology with 32 pre-eminent scholar-authors and 26 chapters, and includes a prologue, epilogue, appendices and index.

On the facing page, you'll find the table of contents, just so you can see the depth and breadth of our City government history in this book.

1889 Fort Street City Hall

In 1889, a much needed city hall was built that would serve the City's present and future needs. The Romanesque revival structure was constructed of red sandstone, steel and wood, with a tower that extended well above the downtown skyline. The location on Fort Street between Second and Third Streets was to showcase the building and emphasize its importance. The Mayor's office and the Council chamber were on the second floor of the tower section.

The City, having spent more than $300,000 for construction was able to provide space in the building for almost every municipal department, including the City's library. The Fort Street city hall remained in existence until 1929. In 1890, Fort Street was renamed Broadway.

The two-volume book produced by Hynda Rudd contains history that was made at every L.A. City Hall, including this one.

PROLOGUE: By Dr. Doyce B. Nunis, Jr. Retired University of Southern California Distinguished Professor Emeritus of History and Retired Editor for 42 years of the Southern California Quarterly, the publication of the Historical Society of Southern California wrote "Los Angeles, 1781-1850." This incredibly well written historical journey covers the Spanish and Mexican rule of Los Angeles prior to its becoming a city by the Act of Incorporation from the State of California Legislature in 1850.

PART I:
CITY GOVERNMENT:
ORGANIZATION AND CORE FUNCTIONS

Los Angeles became a city on March 18, 1850, by the State's Act of Incorporation, but annual reports don't start really until required by the 1878 State Charter, which also required department heads to be responsible for tracking money received and spent for their programs. Law and order is provided by City

The two-volume set, The Development of Los Angeles City Government: An Institutional History, 1850-2000.

Attorneys, City Prosecutors and the Court system, which in the formative years was under the jurisdiction of the mayor. A more physical form of citizen protection came from what would become the City Fire and Police Departments. The Fire Department became a reality in 1872, as a volunteer organization by virtue of an ordinance. The Police Department, through many bumpy episodes over the years, and soon to be one of the leading police departments in the nation, began as a one-man operation with a City Marshal in 1850.

PART II:
CITY GOVERNMENT:
INFRASTRUCTURE AND LAND USE

While early Los Angeles was maturing, other aspects of life consisted of day-to-day living experiences. Water, the central necessity of life was, and continues to be, a primary issue of survival. By some accounts, Los Angeles was considered the most incredible city in the world because its source of water for human and animal consumption was almost nil. But L.A. had a destiny to fulfill. The history of drinking water concerned City fathers dating back to the Spanish and Mexican periods. The first Water Overseer was appointed in 1853. Water of another nature became important to our City through the Port of Los Angeles. The Harbor was granted to our City by the federal government, with provisions and Charter amendments in 1909, the same year the Board of Commissioners was established.

Other aspects of our developing City were the need of public works for municipal improvements. The first Board of Public Works included five members of Council, the Mayor and the City Clerk as secretary; this was in 1872. City planning was also a great necessity in the beginning. So was housing — our City grew by leaps and bounds for many reasons. The City Redevelopment Agency was a late starter back in 1948. Its responsibility was to "reverse vicious cycles of urban deterioration and disinvestments." And finally, transportation truly opened up the West.

PART III:
CITY GOVERNMENT: SOCIAL WELFARE

This section is devoted to government services that were dedicated to the needs of citizens. Public health in the early years of citydom revolved around sanitary measures and health menaces. In the early 1860s there was a smallpox epidemic. Was there a physician in the new City to care for the ill? By 1868, there was a doctor in the area appointed the first Health Officer. The following year, a Board of Health was organized to send the ill to a City hospital. Public education in Los Angeles became a reality in 1853, when the Common (City) Council passed an ordinance creating a Board of Education.

Recreation and parks was another facet needed in the life of Los Angelenos. In the 1880s, lands were finally designated for parks. The 1889 Charter mandated a commission to work with the Parks Department.

The Public Library became a reality in March 1878, a milestone in providing the City with a marked cultural advancement. And the Municipal Arts Department was established in 1927, bringing City government further cultural appeal for its constituents.

PART IV:
THE CITY IN CONTEXT

Aspects of City life evolves out of the beast itself, not always its government. These are things that any town, city or community becomes dependent upon such as the environment, who lives or works there, and the community itself. The patterns in this section refer to three such examples. The first looks at spacial (relating to space) and demographic evaluations from day one in 1850 through today. The second looks at neighborhoods and community empowerment in this enormous City.

PART V:
BEYOND CITY HALL: EXTERNAL INFLUENCES:

City government today is often dependent upon resources beyond its borders, for example, the joint power agreements with Los Angeles County and the State of California. Los Angeles, the one-horse town in the beginning, emerged in the latter part of the 20th century and well into the 21st as a world-wide competitor basically because of our powerful infrastructure of transportation, namely ports, planes, rail systems and freeways.

EPILOGUE: Dr. Raphael J. Sonenshein Professor of Political Science, the State University of California, Fullerton, Executive Director of the City of Los Angeles Appointed Charter Reform Commission and Executive Director of the Neighborhood Council Review Commission, gives a brilliant summation of our City government process from the past into the 21st century.

GORILLAS IN OUR MIDST

The Los Angeles Zoo will unveil its newest exhibit Nov. 8 with the opening of Campo Gorilla Reserve. The state-of-the-art natural habitat will be home to six western lowland gorillas and is designed as a replica of their native African environment. Zoo visitors will walk along a forested pathway for close-up views of gorillas living among waterfalls, lush plants and trees in two habitats-one for a family group of gorillas led by a silverback and the other for a pair of bachelors.

Campo Gorilla Reserve is the first major exhibit to open at the L.A.Zoo in more than two years and marks the return of the Zoo's gorillas after a four-year absence. The three-quarter-acre Campo Gorilla Reserve is the final phase of the Great Ape Forest, a trio of naturalistic exhibits for chimpanzees, orangutans and gorillas. The Great Ape Forest includes the Chimpanzees of Mahale Mountains, the Red Ape Rain Forest and the Campo Gorilla Reserve and will distinguish the Los Angeles Zoo as one of only a handful of zoos to house three species of great apes.

The L.A. Zoo and Botanical Gardens is in Griffith Park at the junction of the Ventura (134) and Golden State (5) Freeways. Admission is $10 for adults and $5 for children 2 to 12. For information, call (323) 644-4200 or visit the L. A. Zoo website at www.lazoo.org.

Police Picnic

Police Protective League hosts annual picnic.

Story and photos by Stephanie Lazarus, LAPD

POLICE DEPT. — On Sept. 22, the Los Angeles Police Protective League had its annual picnic at the Los Angeles Police Academy. The rain almost ruined the beautiful event that was planned. Everyone had a good time once the rain stopped.

There was plenty of food, hamburgers, hot dogs, chili, beans, watermelon, potato salad and cookies. Also offered were popcorn, cotton candy (my favorite) and snow cones. My daughter, Sydney loved the animal petting zoo, and Det. Mike Burnditt's daughter, Caitlin, loved the reptile petting section. They had games for the kids and lots of stuffed animals for prizes.

The picnic was a success, and thanks go to the league for having it at the academy.

Retired LAPD Det. Mike Small and his two grandchildren, Iris and Rio. Watch out for that Hazmat suit behind you!

Det. I Pat Arrue (Metro Division) plays with his new toy. His mother is glad she gave him all those video games to play.

Sydney Young tries to catch her next meal.

Sydney Young gets a surprise lick from the goat.

Det. III Mike Burnditt (Devonshire) and his daughter, Caitlin.

Steve Hanson tries to steal the AFLAC duck at, of all places, at the Police Academy.

Sgt. Ann Pickering (Van Nuys) wears these glasses on patrol.

Det. III Kim Harris (North Hollywood) and her daughter, Kailyn.

The Ferris wheel was a popular activity all day.

Det. I Scott Young's (North Hollywood) daughter, Sydney, wants to know where the food is.

Welcome to the picnic.

Rita Robinson Is New GM of Transportation

■ Club Board Member named to top job.

TRANSPORTATION — Rita Robinson — a 30-year City veteran known for her effective and aggressive leadership, and a City Employees Club Board Member — was named General Manager of Transportation.

Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa announced the leadership change Sept. 28. The previous General Manager, Gloria Jeff, took the position in March 2006.

Robinson will take command of the City's third largest department and will be responsible for the development and implementation of traffic reduction programs and solutions in Los Angeles.

"Rita Robinson is an effective and aggressive leader who is the right person to tackle one of the City's toughest challenges, reducing traffic gridlock," Mayor Villaraigosa said. "In her more than 30 years of public service, Rita has demonstrated exceptional leadership in handling major projects and bringing them in on-time and on-budget."

Robinson was named director of the City's Bureau of Sanitation in January 2004, where she brought leadership to an agency that provides Los Angeles with some of the most fundamental City services. The Bureau of Sanitation has more than 2,800 employees, a budget of $240 million and oversees trash collection, recycling, wastewater and sewage treatment.

Robinson modernized the Bureau of Sanitation making it more effective, efficient and environmentally friendly. Under Robinson's leadership, the Bureau of Sanitation can be credited with:

- Expanding recycling services to over a half million residents in Los Angeles bringing the city's recycling rate to 62 percent - the highest of any large city in the nation.
- Increasing the number of clean fuel trash-collection trucks by 20 percent, which in one year alone (2006), has reduced the emission of greenhouse gases by 40 percent.
- Decreasing sewage spills by 53 percent, to 207 a year from 444.
- Implemented the nation's first project to produce green energy from a renewable bio-resource. When fully operational, the TIRE project will produce approximately 3,500 kilowatts of renewable energy.
- Expanding restaurant food-waste collection from 10 to 150 restaurants, which now recycles approximately 8,000 tons of food-waste per year.
- Increased the City's Wastewater Revenue Bond Rating to the highest rating, allowing more taxpayer dollars to go programs instead of interest payments.

The City Employees Club congratulates Rita on her achievement.

Congratulations

About Rita Robinson

Rita L. Robinson was appointed Interim General Manager of Transportation in September. She brings more than 30 years of government expertise to help find solutions to the traffic challenges that face the nation's second-largest city.

Ms. Robinson is responsible for the day-to-day operations of more than 2000 employees whose mission is to provide for the safe and optimal mobility of people and goods throughout the City to support economic activity and desirable quality of life. With the Transportation team, other transportation agencies and community partnerships, she will succeed in meeting the Department's mission.

Her main focus is to support initiatives that will result in congestion relief, short- and long-range local/regional transportation planning and acquisition of funding to implement those projects. Other improvements planned include expansion and upgrade of the Automated Traffic Surveillance and Control system (ATSAC), installation of additional traffic intersection signals, increasing vehicle turning lanes and left-turn signals, installation of more visible, modern signage, and the construction of new speed humps.

Before her appointment, Ms. Robinson directed the Public Works Bureau of Sanitation, which has 3,000 employees and the mission to protect public health and the environment through legal, efficient and effective collection, treatment, reuse and disposal of liquid and solid wastes.

As Director of the Bureau of Sanitation, Ms. Robinson managed a budget of $260 million in both General Fund and Special Funds.

Prior to becoming the Bureau of Sanitation's Director in January 2004, Ms. Robinson served as interim General Manager of Housing for one year and as interim General Manager of Transportation for six months.

As Interim General Manager of Housing, Ms. Robinson directed a staff of approximately 500 employees responsible for housing production, rehabilitation, and preservation. The Department also administers the City's Rent Stabilization Ordinance and Code Enforcement Program. Ms. Robinson's major accomplishments as Interim General Manager included the development of the implementation plan for the use of the $100 million Affordable Housing Trust Fund approved by the Mayor and City Council for additional housing opportunities within the City.

While serving as Interim General Manager of Transportation, Ms. Robinson directed a staff of 1,500 full-time and 500 part-time professional, engineering, field and clerical employees responsible for the development of programs and implementation of solutions to meet the ground transportation needs of the traveling public, as well as everyday commerce.

Ms. Robinson, a longtime resident of Southern California and a 1975 graduate of Scripps College in Claremont, is a 30-year City employee and has served in a number of capacities in Los Angeles City government, including the Office of the City Administrative Officer, Rec and Parks, and Community Development.

She is also a Board Member for the City Employees Club of Los Angeles. The Club was founded in 1928 to provide employee insurance benefits and is now a membership organization. It now offers discounted tickets, officially licensed city merchandise, and other benefits and services.

Angel's Be Alive!

Angel Gomez, Member Services Manager

Los Angeles River

■ Angel goes on another biking adventure, this time along the L.A. River.

Photos by Alive! Staff

Hello again! This month's Be Alive! – my second bike trail in a row -- is only 3.2 miles long, and it's an adventure to say the least: trees and water to the left and freeways and cars to the right. Our short trip begins at the Riverside Drive exit off of the I-5. I exited the freeway, made a right turn and parked at a small park. The cross streets are Garden and Sonora.

Before you start any trip, take a moment and look at the signs. Important: The bike path is open from 5:30 a.m. until 10:30 p.m. And remember to bring plenty of water and snacks on any trip. Oh, and bring a friend. Be Alive and Be Safe!

I started my adventure at about 12:30 p.m., and it was a gorgeous day. As I traveled south through the river bikeway, I felt relaxed and began to just enjoy the natural beauty of everything I could see. There were tall green trees, sparkling running water, and beautiful birds feeding and flying all around. This is definitely another hidden treasure in Los Angeles.

I usually have someone with me on all these adventures for safety and of course to take the pictures, so as we traveled the path we came across some old water lids that release water into the river. Well, these lids were the shape of a cat and (I was told) you could see them from the freeway years ago. They are still there; just hidden by the freeway wall.

Then, we came across a few of your fellow City employees, Street Lighting, to be exact. They were repairing a large section of lights that had been vandalized, so we stopped and took this picture on our adventure.

To the Street Lighting crew, we say, thank you for all your hard work. If you know or see these great guys, give them a high five for an outstanding job!

After my brief visit, I had only about a mile to go. Within a few more minutes, I was at the Baum Bicycle Bridge over Los Feliz Boulevard. You can see this bridge from the freeway; I love the architectural design (circles) on the bridge. I stopped and took a look around. Beautiful!

You can continue the bike path, but 3.2 miles was a good for me. So, I turned around and started back for the home stretch. By the way, there are other ways to enter the bike path — one is across from Griffith Park, and I'm sure you know or can find a few more.

My adventure lasted only about an hour and a half, but it was amazing. Thank you, Los Angeles River Bikeway, for a wonderful time. Maybe next time I will bike a few more miles.

Be Safe and Be Alive!

During my bike ride, I encountered a crew from Public Works/Street Lighting along the way. From left: myself (Angel Gomez); Robert Schellinger, Asst. Elect., 14 years of service; David Rios, Asst. Elect., 5 years of service; Frank Gaffney, Welder, 2.5 years of service; G. Lee, Asst. Elect., 15 years of service; and Jack Pettigrew, Elect., 15 years of service.

Life insurance:

How Much Is Enough?

■ Many Americans with life insurance are so under-insured that if they die, their families won't be able to maintain their standard of living.

Loss of the deceased's income can have a devastating financial impact on a family. Assets may have to be sold to cover heavy medical expenses, final expenses and living costs. Recent reports from LIMRA International found that:

- Many married couples fail to plan for the eventual death of one spouse before the other, which can have serious consequences, especially when the survivor is the wife (Public Misperceptions About Retirement Security – Closing the Gaps, 2007).
- 22% of families with dependent children admit they would have immediate trouble meeting everyday expenses and another 26% could only cover expenses for a few months if a primary wage earner died (Facts About Life, 2006).
- 45% of widows and 37% of widowers say their spouse was inadequately insured. (LIMRA Web site, 3/2007).

The stark fact is that many Americans – nearly one-third, according to the 2006 LIMRA report – still don't have life insurance, and many of those who do have coverage often don't have enough to really make a difference:

- On average, U.S. households report they should own enough life insurance to replace six years of income, but only owned enough to replace their income for 2.8 years.

Getting the coverage you need

When you consider these facts, you may find that your family would not be adequately protected should they lose you and your income.

"Typically, term life insurance offers you the most life insurance protection for your money," explained Robert Larios, the Director of Marketing and Communications for The City Employees Club of Los Angeles. "It becomes even more affordable when you can purchase it at an attractive group rate. If there is a gap between the amount of life insurance you have and the amount your family would need, term life insurance may be the most economical way to close it."

What to look for in a plan

When evaluating term life insurance plans, here are some things to consider:

- Can you get the amount you need to adequately protect your family?
- Can you also get coverage for your spouse?
- Will the premiums for the amount of coverage you want be easy for you to handle?
- Is it easy and convenient to apply for?
- Is the underwriting company highly rated and financially strong?

The City Employees Club of Los Angeles has selected a Group Term Life Insurance Plan underwritten by a member company of American International Group, Inc., The United States Life Insurance Company in the City of New York. For active and retired City or DWP employees

"My cost for $100,000 of life insurance? Just $6.00* a paycheck."

"My advice? Take a minute to apply today."

See how economical this plan can be for you – see the chart below.

Life Insurance from the Club is a smart, easy choice

As little as $2.75 per pay period! Get $50,000 to $300,000 of term life insurance coverage at economical group rates – for example, a 29-year-old can get $50,000 for $2.75 per bi-weekly pay period.

Both you and your spouse can apply. Your spouse can apply even if you don't.

Fair pricing built right in! If we collect more premium than we end up needing for claims and expenses, we give the excess back to you! For 77 of our 79 years, insured members have received a Term Life premium refund!

Typically no medical exam needed if you're under age 50 and apply for up to $100,000. If an exam is required for higher amounts, it will be scheduled at your convenience and at no cost to you.

You can take your coverage with you. This plan is portable, and stays with you even if you change jobs.

*Example for a 30- to 34-year-old.

Issuance of a Certificate of Insurance or payment of benefits may depend upon the answers given in the application and the truthfulness of those answers.

No need to write a check! Payroll deduction makes premium payments easy and automatic.

Double your benefit for just a few dollars more. An economical way to double your total death benefit is to choose the same amount of Group Accidental Death and Dismemberment Insurance (AD&D) as your term life coverage. Just complete Step 3 of the application. There's never a medical exam required for Accidental Death insurance. And the cost is just $1.25 per $25,000 of coverage, regardless of age:

- $50,000 for $2.50/month
- $100,000 for $5.00/month
- $200,000 for $10.00/month

Apply in minutes! Just complete and return the brief application at right to apply. >>>

Quick and easy to buy! Find your economical group cost below, based on your current age. Then select the premium amount most comfortable for your budget – $50,000, $100,000, $200,000. Or choose any other amount from $10,000 up to $300,000, in increments of $10,000.

Term Life Insurance premiums based on bi-weekly payroll deductions

Age	$50,000	$100,000	$200,000
Under 30	$2.75	$5.50	$11.00
30-34	3.00	6.00	12.00
35-39	3.75	7.50	15.00
40-44	5.25	10.50	21.00
45-49	7.75	15.50	31.00
50-54	12.75	25.50	51.00
55-59	21.50	43.00	86.00
60-64	30.75	61.50	123.00
65-69	55.00	110.00	220.00
70+	(Renewal only, $10,000 benefit, $12.50/month)

Just $1.20 bi-weekly covers all dependents over 6 months to age 19 (23 if a full-time student) for $10,000 each (subject to state variations).

DWP employees please note: Because your deductions occur once per month instead of bi-weekly, your premiums are 2 times the premiums shown. Coverage amount reduces to $10,000 when you reach age 70. Maximum benefit for those individuals 70+ years of age is $10,000. The bi-weekly cost is $12.50. For retirees, insurance ends at age 60. After age 60, you're eligible for the Retiree Life Plan.

ClubFest 2007

ClubFest Sells Out

■ More than 1,500 Club Members enjoy a beautiful ClubFest day.

CLUB HEADQUARTERS — Sold out more than a week before the actual day, ClubFest 2007 was another big hit.

More than 1,500 Club Members and their families and friends gathered Oct. 7 at Calamigos Ranch in the hills above Malibu for sun, fun, rides, booths, a raffle, great live party music and, for the first time, ribs, which proved even more popular than Club officials predicted.

"Every year is great, but this might have been the best ClubFest yet," said John Hawkins, Club CEO. "There were a lot of great people there, although we made sure to stop selling tickets before it got too crowded. The food was good, and I had a lot of fun!"

Those of you who tried to get tickets but were too late, the Club apologizes but reminds you to buy your tickets a little earlier next year.

Thanks to the ClubFest team, especially Robert Larios, Director of Marketing and Communications, and Navin Cotton, a.k.a. the Ticket Guy, for their hard work to make ClubFest 2007 the best one yet.

See everyone next year!

A First-Person Report

■ Club Member Yvonne Liu reports on her first ClubFest.

Story by Yvonne Liu, Office of Finance

Yvonne Liu and her son, Benjamin.

CLUB HEADQUARTERS—On Sunday, Oct. 7, my family and I went to check out the ClubFest festivities for the first time.

The ranch itself is beautiful: There are soft, pasture-like lawns and many shady trees for children to explore. Event organizers planned for clearly marked booths for food and activities, plenty of clean picnic tables and dining tables and easy parking. The weather was perfectly warm enough for getting wet on waterslides and water balloon battles, but not unbearable if you were standing under the sun dancing to the live music provided by The Latin Gents, Jamnesia and Bad Boyz & Company.

My husband, sons, Benjamin, and Oliver, 9 months; my mother; and my sister and her two children, Nikita, 11, and Ananda, 6, accompanied me to the Fest. All the children, including the baby, were seasoned festival participants and they all gave ClubFest 2007 their thumbs up.

My mom was impressed with the customer service: the cooking, parking and cleaning staff. She was also impressed by the quality of the entertainers, especially the rodeo clown, the puppeteer and the face painters. As a mom, I was thrilled that one low-price ticket covered live bands, all-you-want-to-eat barbecue lunch, Popsicles and drinks, rides, games for children and raffles for adults. No wonder many of the guests are returning guests.

Rewanda Mason-McGee, DWP, with 35 years of City service, has not missed one ClubFest in the last seven years. She said, "I come with my best friend, and we bring all the grandchildren and we have a great time! Every time. I love the food, the entertainment and chatting with my friends and family."

Juan Camales, son of Jose Camales, DWP, came with nearly a dozen family members. His sons, Kevin, 10, and Gabriel, 5, both enjoyed the game Scream and Run, where each contestant must run as far as they can scream without stopping. Gabriel and his father also participated in the Balloon Waddle, where they had to complete a relay race carrying a balloon, like a penguin carrying an egg. Juan, who had recently taken his family to Knott's Berry Farm, said, "Coming [to ClubFest] is much safer. It is a beautiful location, and [the activities] get the kids moving."

While I was waiting in line with Benjamin for face painting, he spotted the puppet show 10 yards away and took off to join the other children seated on the floor. He was enjoying the friendly and lifelike puppet emu, rabbit, and dog so much that I saw him waving goodbye to them. Where else can you bring your family to an event like this and safely have your small children run about?

In fact, kids are one of the most important reasons to come to ClubFest. First-timer Ken Lam of ITA and Jeanie Lam of Public Works/Bureau of Engineering said that's why they brought their four children. Their older children's favorites were the Ferris wheel and the waterslides.

David Muraoka, LAPD and Club Board Member, wouldn't miss ClubFest any year. This year he brought his grandchildren. With 33 years of City service behind him, David said, "It's a pleasure for me to see the kids have a great time. It's truly heartwarming to see the members and their families enjoy themselves. [ClubFest] is all for the kids."

Benjamin's favorites were the cow-juggling clown, the pony ride and the tractor-pulled hayride. Oliver was happiest clapping and bouncing to the music. While Nikita said the ribs were the best, Ananda liked the winged dragon that he had painted on his cheek. Nikita also said the site passed her test for easy wheelchair accessibility. By the look of their happy faces, I'm very sure we'll be coming back, too.

When asked what he enjoys the most about ClubFest, Club CEO John Hawkins said, "Seeing more and more City Employees taking advantage of the only picnic in the City that brings all departments together, whether it's Fire, Sanitation, General Services or Airports."

"It's just a fun-filled day with nonstop fun, food and wonderful music," he added.

Harbor's C&M crew, along with Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa, celebrate the Harbor's receiving international certification for its Environmental Management System.

■ Harbor's Environmental Management System receives international certification.

HARBOR — With the cry of "we did it!," Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa helped the Construction and Maintenance (C&M) Division at the Harbor celebrated the official ISO 14001:2004 certification of its Environmental Management System (EMS) Sept. 28. The Port of Los Angeles is the first seaport on the West Coast and the third in the nation to receive international certification.

"I couldn't be more proud of our dedicated employees at the Port of Los Angeles," Villaraigosa said. "Every individual at our Construction and Maintenance Division got behind the program and pushed it further than we imagined. And the benefit for all Angelenos is cleaner operations and an improved environment."

ISO stands for the International Organization for Standardization, located in Geneva, Switzerland. ISO promotes the development and implementation of voluntary international standards, both for particular products and for environmental management issues. The Port received certification for its EMS in place at its C&M Division, which includes all craft services including plumbing, painting, mechanical repair, electrical repair and pile driving. The EMS is a voluntary program designed to provide effective and economical environmental management by assuring that the operations, products and services are in line with the corporate environmental policy; minimizing adverse environmental aspects and impacts; and ensuring an ongoing commitment to regulatory compliance.

"The EMS has really empowered our employees to think creatively for ways to improve operations and their impacts on the environment," said Geraldine Knatz, Executive Director at the Port of Los Angeles. "We're recycling more than 35 tons of paper each year; we've gone to biodegradable products throughout our organization, and we've created an Environmental Compliance Assessment tool, for starters. We're dedicated to the program and will continue along this path."

The overall program took a team of C&M and Environmental Management staff two years to implement and customize to the Port's particular needs and operations. Most C&M employees have had some facet of the training, and many received specialized training in their particular fields. The EMS has become a part of the division's culture. The Port of Los Angeles also requires its C&M contractors to adhere to ISO guidelines.

MOVIE REVIEWS

The Brave One

Rated R
My Score: 3 (out of 5)

Jodie Foster plays a radio host in New York City, who, along with her fiancé (Naveen Andrews from TV's Lost) are brutally attacked while taking a walk. Sadly her fiancé dies, and she is unable to move on. Originally purchasing a gun for her safety, she begins to take late night walks and when she comes across some bad guys, she blows them away!

Jodie as always turns in a brilliant performance, and Terrence Howard was excellent as the NYPD detective searching for the vigilante killer. I would wait for the rental on this one.

— Gail Seltzer, DWP

My Score: 4 (out of 5)

Jodie Foster stars as Erica Bain, who tries to adjust to life after being beaten almost to death as her boyfriend was while they were taking their dog out for a walk. Instead of going to therapy as most people would, Erica tries to cope in another way.

This movie is dark and very violent, especially the first violent scene. Not at all for children! The movie also makes you think. I would recommend this for adults who like a good drama, topped off with violence in their movies.

— Debbie Winger, DWP

Stardust

My Score: 4 (out of 5)

Twinkle twinkle little star, how I wonder what you are. Wonder no more: Clare Danes stars as Yvaine, literally a fallen star (not the Britney Spears kind) who unwittingly plummets to earth and assumes human form. Once word of her arrival gets out, a variety of characters seeks to possess her for a variety of reasons, some for love, others for power, beauty and immortality.

This is an uneven yet enjoyable movie. There are dark moments, but they are offset by a wry sense of humor. Danes shines as the star, and Charlie Cox is well cast as the young hero with a destiny. Michelle Pfeiffer is perfectly sinister as an evil witch, and Robert DeNiro is odd and endearing as a cross-dressing pirate. Fun cameos by Peter O'Toole, Rupert Everett, Ricky Gervais and a bratty Sienna Miller all add to the shenanigans. This is a "love conquers all" movie, wrapped up in a fun mystical package.

— Dan Basiglio, LAPD

The Bourne Ultimatum

My Score: 4 (out of 5)

Third film in a trilogy of Jason Bourne's quest to find out who he is after being brain-washed in a government experiment. The action sequences and story are all first rate. Matt Damon portrays the tormented Bourne with utmost delicacy, teetering on the line of humanity and heroics without becoming a cartoon. Joan Allen and David Strathairn, supposedly on the same side of the law, add solid support to Bourne's internal and external struggle.

My only complaint is the jerky camera movements that attempt to add edge but at times are only distracting. Julia Stiles, Albert Finney and Scott Glenn co-star. I suggest watching the first two "Bourne" DVDs to bring you up to speed!

— Dan Basiglio, LAPD

The Heartbreak Kid

Rated R
My Score: 3 (out of 5)

This is a somewhat raunchy comedy starring Ben Stiller as Eddie and Malin Akerman as his wife, Lila. The story is mostly based on their honeymoon in Cabo San Lucas. There, Eddie realizes he made a huge mistake rushing into that marriage but meets and falls in love with another vacationing woman, Miranda (Michelle Monaghan).

This movie was ridiculously predictable and the humor was old. If you seen There's Something About Mary and Along Came Polly, you'll recognize the similarities and the same situations. However, I enjoyed Jerry Stiller as Doc, Eddie's father. All his scenes were hilarious as were the bedroom scenes of Eddie and Lila. Carlos Mencia also had a role as a raunchy hotel employee.

— Chuck Beas, DWP

The Kingdom

Rated R
My Score: 3.5 (out of 5)

A horrific terrorist attack takes place in Saudi Arabia, killing hundreds of Americans and Saudis. Against the wishes of the U.S. Government, an elite FBI team moves in to investigate the murders. At first the team is kept under tight control and not allowed to move around the Saudi Kingdom freely. So the movie does drag a bit in the beginning. Once they gain access to more clues, the action takes off.

Jaimie Foxx, Jennifer Garner and Chris Cooper are all fine as the elite team. But it is the surprise performances of Jason Bateman and Ashraf Barhom as a Saudi counterpart that bring a real sense of life to the film.

There's not really much of a script here, but it does provide an ending that will leave you unsatisfied with the current state of affairs in the world today, and rightly so.

— Dan Basiglio, LAPD

Big Fat Liar (2002)

Rated PG
My Score: 4 (out of 5)

If you need a good laugh, rent this movie. It is about a 14-year-old boy (Frankie Muniz) who can't tell the truth to save his life. He gets in trouble at every turn. Muniz has to write a paper for school because of his lies. He actually finishes the paper, but it is stolen by a Hollywood producer (Paul Giamatti). Of course no one believes Muniz when he tells them that Giamatti stole his paper and is now making a movie. Muniz sets out to prove to everyone he can tell the truth. It's very funny; watch it.

— Stephanie Lazarus, LAPD

Pride (2007)

Rated PG
My Score: 4 (out of 5)

This was a very good movie. It is about a young black man (Terrence Howard), who was a former swimmer. Teams would not swim against his team because he was black. In the mid 1970's, after going to college, Howard worked for the Philadelphia Department of Recreation. He starts coaching underprivileged kids how to swim. These kids end up taking the state finals despite all the odds against him. I thought it was a very inspirational movie, and your children can definitely see this one.

Nineteen Minutes

Jodi Picoult, Adult Fiction, Atria, 464 pages
My Score: 5 (out of 5)

In 19 minutes you can mow your lawn, color your hair or watch a third of a hockey game. Nineteen Minutes explores what can happen when a 17-year-old high school student, Peter Houghton of Sterling, N.H., endures years of verbal and physical abuse from his classmates. Peter is sent over the edge, which leads him to the ultimate violence that changes the lives of the residents of Sterling forever. Like the Columbine shootings, everyone's lives are forever changed.

Pumpkins: Pretty Pleasing as Soup

When I mentioned that I was making pumpkin soup, it was common to get a cringing reaction from people. I have a feeling that they all envisioned in their minds their decoratively carved but withered pumpkins that they had placed at their homes, simmering in a stew pot. The reality is that pumpkin soup can be quite flavorful while simple to make.

There are three methods I have used when making pumpkin soup. And in preserving the concept of keeping Cooking With the Club recipes simple but packed with delicious flavor, I've decided to go with the recipe that takes a moderate time to prepare, but not so much that you have to put up a tent in the kitchen for your dish to finish cooking.

Instead of roasting a pumpkin and then taking the flesh into a mixer, I've skipped that step and just bought a can of mashed, unsweetened pumpkin. Remember, I'm keeping it simple, although if there are pros out there, feel free to prepare the pumpkin in the roasted pumpkin method, since you'll be able to get the highest quality of flavors this way.

I'm sure that you will agree that the recipe below very closely matches the tremendous taste of roasted pumpkin soup.

DIRECTIONS:

Step 1: Select a medium-size pumpkin for use as a decorative soup bowl.

Step 2: Cut the pumpkin toward the stem side so that you can later use the cut piece as a lid.

Step 3: Gut the pumpkin seeds and the rest of the inside material.

Step 4: Place the cleaned pumpkin on a baking sheet and put in the oven on broil for about 10 minutes or until the inside of the pumpkin has dried out.

Step 5: Open the can of mashed pumpkin and place the contents in a bowl. Add the parsley, pepper and salt.

Step 6: In a sauce pan on medium heat, sauté the diced scallions and minced garlic in the olive oil until slightly brown, and then add the pumpkin from the can. Stir.

Step 7: While stirring, slowly add the pint of the half and half milk to the pumpkin.

Step 8: Add soup to the medium-sized pumpkin that was hollowed out; sprinkle finely chopped chives over the soup, and place the lid on the pumpkin to keep it warm.

Perfect Pumpkin Soup

Serves about 2 to 4

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 medium size pumpkin
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Parsley
- 1 clove of garlic
- 1 medium size scallion or 1/4 cup red onion
- 1 can (15 oz.) mashed pumpkin
- 1 pint of half and half milk
- 1/4 cup of green chives
- 1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil

Enjoy, and happy Thanksgiving!
